Your so-called "resiliency project" is a total misnomer! The thinning and burning of our forests under the guise of fuel reduction to prevent..what?!?...forest fires(!!) is completely antithetical to a true understanding of the forest's own natural resilience in the face of climate change. The prescriptions of the Forest Service are DRASTIC, not conservative. They endanger not only the ecological balance and habitat for wildlife, as well as the respiratory health of humans nearby. Our government has attempted to eliminate the need for an EIS and any precautionary approaches to the management of our natural resources. This is a travesty being enacted on all of nature.
